Title: Excerpts from "The Dark Birth."

Author: Jared Singh Ishbar

The lands shall fall
and the seas shall rise
steal the sun
from the dark skies
the silence is broken
the black eyes burn
the lesson learned
for his pride

the tide will turn
seeking the truth
amongst the stagnant
halls beleive the lies
to guarantee ones fall
inside the walls
fires again burn

light had it's chance
witness the dark
birth.
_From "The Dark
Birth"

An interesting peace here indeed. It seems to be a form of prophecy. I think that

"the lands shall fall"
refers to the appearance of the new lands. "The black
eyes burn" i have no doubt refer to Lord

Mordain's eys of black. As to what "the lesson" is though i am clueless. There are many other
references here that are hard to understand. I must

study more in hopes to understand the
meanings.
Jared, the Daystealer

From the shore
blakness shall steal
hope from those who have nothing else.
From the shadows
shall Twilight await to make it's presence
known.
